Medicaid kickbacks revealed in testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — A small number of medical laboratories are kicking back millions of dollars in Medicaid funds to physicians in at least five states, investigators told a Senate committee today.

The testimony came as the Senate committee on aging began hearings on allegations of fraud and abuse among medical laboratories. Chairman Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, said in an opening statement that a small number of labs control the bulk of Medicaid payments.

Moss said that 17 labs in New York control 70 per cent of that state's Medicaid business, while 12 labs in New Jersey control nearly 60 per cent of Medicaid payments there. In Illinois, 26 labs control over 90 per cent of the Medicaid business, he said.

The investigation also covered California and Pennsylvania.

Moss said a report by the panel's staff "concludes that, at least in the states which came under investigation, kickbacks are widespread among labs specializing in Medicaid business. In fact, it appears to be necessary to give a kickback in order to secure the business of physicians or clinics who specialize in the treatment of welfare patients."

Frank L. Holstein, executive director of the New Jersey State Commission of Investigation, told the committee: "Shortcomings and loopholes which had developed in the New Jersey Medicaid program presented a virtual open door to those laboratory owners to profiteer at the taxpayers' expense."

Under the Medicaid program, the state and federal governments are paying out a total of about $180.5 million in the current fiscal year to laboratories for analyses of blood and urine and other specimens taken from the aged, poor, blind and disabled.

In addition, Medicare payments for persons 65 years and older account for an additional $32.5 million.

The panel's staff said that of the total payout of $213 million, at least $45 million is "either fraudulent or unnecessary."

One account of the opportunity for kickbacks came from Douglas A. Longhini, an investigator for the Better Government Association of Chicago. In his prepared testimony, Longhini said the BGA, the Chicago Tribune and CBS' "60 Minutes" rented a $400-a-month storefront office on Chicago's north-east side last December.

Longhini said a sign placed in the window advertised it as a medical clinic. In addition, he said, he contacted representatives of 15 Chicago-based laboratories and told them he represented two Illinois doctors who were opening the clinic.

"Of the 13 laboratories I spoke to, 11 labs offered the doctors a kickback or rebate on the dollar amount of laboratory business referred by the medical clinic to the lab," Longhini said.

Additional interviews found a total of 13 independent labs giving kickbacks to doctors and clinics which accounted for 65 per cent of Illinois' Medicaid payments to clinical labs in 1975, he said.

The report concludes that it is apparent that the law passed by Congress in 1972 prohibiting kickbacks and mandating a $10,000 fine and a year in jail upon conviction is not being enforced.

Opposed to aid for Postal Service

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's budget director told Congress today higher postal rates are inevitable and that it should not give the deficit-ridden Postal Service more of the taxpayers' money.

James T. Lynn, director of the Office of Management and Budget, told the Senate Post Office Committee that the Postal Service should cut more of its costs. He opposed giving the service more subsidies.

As Lynn testified, Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar released a statement saying the Postal Service cut 15,000 employees from its payroll last year. Calculating in terms of man-years, Bailar said the reduction saves $200 million.

Committee Chairman Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., has proposed doubling the Postal Service's $1.5-billion annual subsidy for three years.

Lynn's position is another indication of increasing tension between the White House and the Postal Service.

President Ford recently said of postal managers, "I just don't accept that they are doing as well as they should be doing. We have to prod them, just like we are prodding New York City, to improve their efficiency, their productivity."

The old Post Office Department for nearly 200 years was one of the most political agencies of government. Presidents named postmasters general, and postal policy traditionally was part of administration policy.

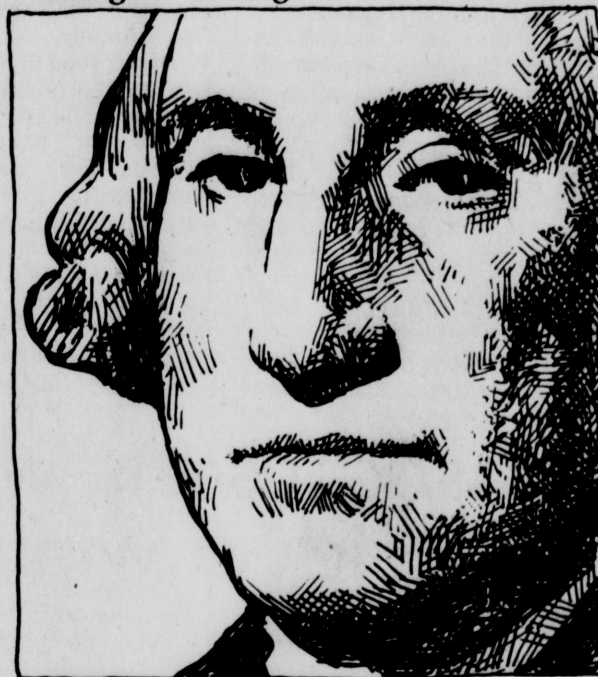

However, since the independent Postal Service was formed in 1971, the postmaster general has not been a presidential appointee and the agency's policies sometimes have differed from those of the administration.

Ford wants to hold down government spending and has cut the budget request for the Postal Service.

This comes at a time when the postal Service desperately needs additional funds. It expects a deficit of about $1.5 billion in the fiscal year ending June 30. That amounts to a loss of nearly 2 cents on each piece of mail delivered.

Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar, testifying in favor of the McGee subsidy proposal, has said that without higher taxpayer subsidies, mail rates would continue their upward spiral.

George Washington

The preservation of the sacred fire of liberty, and the destiny of the republican model of government, are justly considered as deeply, perhaps as finally staked, on the experiment entrusted to the hands of the American people.

First Inaugural Address

The basis of our political system is the right of the people to make and to alter their constitutions of government.

Farewell Address

Observe good faith and justice toward all nations. Cultivate peace and harmony with all. The Nation which indulges toward another an habitual hatred or an habitual fondness is in some degree a slave. It is a slave to its animosity or to its affection, either of which is sufficient to lead it astray from its duty and its interests.

Farewell Address

Happily the Government of the United States, which gives to bigotry no sanction, to persecution no assistance, requires only that they who live under its protection should demean themselves as good citizens in giving it on all occasions their effectual support.

Letter to the Jewish Congregation of Newport, Rhode Island

Reagan speech at Dixon High on Feb. 24

Ronald Reagan, former California governor who is a Republican candidate for President on Feb. 24, at 1:15 p.m., is scheduled to enter the hallowed halls of his alma mater, Dixon High School.

The former Dixomite will be on a whirlwind tour of his birthplace and the areas of his boyhood days. He is scheduled to be in Tampico, his birthplace, at Emerald Hill and then on to Dixon, and to leave here at 1:45 p.m. for Rockford.

Subject to the approval of the Secret Service, whose agents are to be here Wednesday, a rally is planned for the candidate in Lancaster Gymnasium.

Reagan is expected to speak here for 15 to 20 minutes. He will be introduced by State Sen. David Shapiro, R-Ambly, Lee County coordinator for the Reagan campaign.

The Dixon High School graduate will be greeted by DHS Principal Richard Boyer and Supt. of Schools Stanley Weber. Petra Rusev, the DHS student who wrote to Reagan about the stage rehabilitation effort in the high school auditorium and received a letter in return and a $50 check, will be on hand to meet the candidate.

B. F. Frazier, who was principal of DHS while Reagan was a student here, will present his ex-student with a framed picture of Reagan in his football uniform, with his principal and his coach.

The DHS German Band is slated to play for the rally.

Rural Fire questionnaires to be mailed on March 22

By LENNY INGRASSIA

Questionnaires will be mailed March 22 to many residents in the Dixon Rural Fire District to get voter input concerning a proposed three-cent tax levy for the cost of a new stationhouse in Dixon. The action was taken at a special meeting this morning in the office of Board Atty. George Nichols.

The board directed Nichols to prepare a mailing list of approximately 1,000 names for the random sampling. There are 4,300 registered voters in the district.

The poll will consist of a cover letter exposing the need for a new station and a stamped return postcard for voter response.

Methods of financing a proposed $150,000 building have plagued the board for more than one year, however, members George Beier, Earl Burket and Thomas Shaw, board president, agreed a bond referendum will provide the needed monies.

It was Shaw, who last month suggested the poll as a means of seeing how the vote will go "before we spend the money for holding the referendum." The cost to conduct a bond referendum, regardless of the outcome, is estimated at $15,000.

Mailing costs to conduct the poll will be $220.

If a positive response is received from voters, the board is expected to proceed with the referendum within one month. A three-cent increase in the tax rate will cost a $30,000 homeowner an additional $4.50. That same homeowner is now paying $45 annually for rural fire protection.

Conversely, an overwhelming negative response will lead to possible curtailment of the building program.

Rural Fire Chief Edwin Voss says the need for a new station is critical. "Space is the big problem—we've only got a quarter-inch between rigs—the roof leaks and three furnaces need to be replaced."

Voss said he favored taking funds for the building out of the existing budget referring to a termed surplus of $113,000 by 1980. That figure was released by Shaw at the last meeting, however, the board president did not agree the funds are "surplus."

"Salaries go up and equipment needs to be replaced—I don't see how you can call that a surplus," Shaw said. Referring to a request from Boss for two tanker trucks, Beier said "That (reserve) could wipe out those funds."

Replacement of the trucks were contained in a list of 10-year-needs of the district, prepared by Voss, and estimated to cost $365,000.

Can spring be far behind?

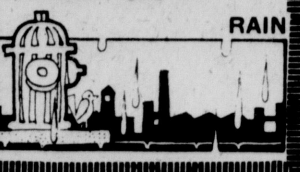

A springlike windy Sunday motivated persons of all ages to get outside to enjoy what heralded to be the beginning of the end of winter. Motorbikes were in abundance, bicycles, convertible tops came down, kites were flying and kids cavorted on outdoor climbing apparatuses, at right. The temperature hit 62 degrees but was not a record here. The mercury soared to 70 degrees on Feb. 15, 1921. Nature, too, seems convinced that spring is in the offing. The pussywillow above is beginning to bloom. (Telegraph Photos)

Accused in auto case

Dixon Police arrested Robert A. Zweifel early this morning on a charge of criminal trespass to vehicle.

Zweifel, 18, 511 W. First St., was accused of driving a car belonging to Mark Mayfield, 709 Division St., without permission. The 1969 Cadillac was reported stalled at the intersection of Galena Avenue and Everett Street. Witnesses said that Zweifel left the car when the engine failed.

Zweifel was picked up at the Dixon Hotel shortly after the incident and held in jail pending a court appearance.

Strange U.S. Bicentennial

Various groups are trying to use our 200 years of freedom to turn it into the path of socialism by people who prefer a one-world government instead of our freedom of the United States government.

The first part of the World Council Program was drafted by H. S. Commagen, a socialist with international views and to strengthen the United Nations.

Many of your senators and representatives have agreed to endorse Commagen Declaration of Interdependence. Adlai Stevenson and John B. Anderson are two from your district in Illinois. Why these men think a one world government is better than the type of government our forefathers created is not understandable.

The United Nations has demonstrated time and again that your rights are far safer under the United States Constitution and Declaration of Independence than they would be under the United Nations or any form of world government.

We have sat back and let the communists inflict socialistic laws that have wasted the working people's earnings have made good men and women unproductive. We have seen the erosion of what used to be the supremacy of our armed services by untrustworthy political leaders that desire a one-world government.

Everyone of you has a mind, so do your own thinking. The politicians, college professors, union bosses, etc., have been leading the voters. They have tried to make you believe they are right. Surely living conditions prove they are wrong. You will have to do your own thinking if you expect to live in a free country. Question everything they say and especially how they vote, for it is often different from what they say.

Massachusetts wants to pick a winner

BOSTON (LENS)—Liberal voters in solidly Democratic Massachusetts will be facing an uncomfortable dilemma when the second of the state presidential primary elections is held on March 2.

They want a candidate who is palpably honest, but they also want one who can win. The two are not necessarily the same, as voters in Massachusetts well know.

In 1972, Massachusetts was the only state to reject Richard Nixon in favor of the calamitous loser, Sen. George McGovern. The Democratic dilemma is not hard to understand. "Liberals miss their limousines," explained one well-heeled fund-raiser.

The Democrats will have been out of power for eight years when next year's presidential inauguration takes place, and Democrats in Massachusetts, who often seem to view themselves as something of a government in exile, are eager for the spoils of federal office.

The chief beneficiary of the wish for clean government is Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona. Despite being little known and poorly rated in the opinion polls, Udall is winning impressive endorsements from the liberal establishment in Massachusetts; from Archibald Cox, the Watergate special prosecutor, whom President Nixon had fired; from the majority leader in the House of Representatives, Tip O'Neill; from John Kenneth Galbraith and from the president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, both of them telling endorsements in a state where more voters than usual are academics.

Campaign advertisements for Udall on the radio begin with a sound as of water dripping from a tap into a stone sink, followed by the words: "Watergate, the FBI, the CIA..." evoking in the listener's mind a sense of the erosion of public trust in government. That there is such a mood of distrust is neither disputed nor surprising.

In a recent opinion poll 68 per cent of the respondents were ready to agree to the proposition that "over the last 10 years the country's leaders have consistently lied to the American people." What is questioned is whether Udall can fully exploit this mood, or whether, even in Massachusetts, to be "Mr. Clean" is quite enough. Udall has to shake off the suspicion that he stands simply no chance of winning the Democratic nomination.

The one candidate who, on the basis of early showings in Iowa and Maine at least, has the look of a possible winner is Jimmy Carter of Georgia. He is strongly rated in Massachusetts and has begun to attract a number of campaign organizers who helped McGovern secure the nomination last time. But unanswered questions involving Carter's conduct and his record as governor of Georgia are beginning to hurt his standing, and one liberal fund-raiser reports finding it hard to drum up money for the Carter campaign.

The early leader in opinion samples in Massachusetts, is, or was, Sargent Shriver. But this is a poor guide to his real strength. His high ratings in the polls are due in part to the simple fact that among a field of 10 Democratic candidates, his name is the best known, with the exception of Gov. George Wallace's and the possible one of Sen. Henry Jackson's. But they are competing for votes on the right.

In this most liberal of states, the appeal of Wallace is one large imponderable. Wallace is cultivating the white working-class neighborhoods of south Boston where the noisy and often violent campaign against "enforced school busing" is strongest. Yet his appeal is not limited to that issue.

Wallace acts as a lightning rod for a more generalized discontent among urban white voters. Jackson is courting this vote as well, but his appeal, being more diluted, is less effective.

Some say Wallace will get as much as a fifth of the vote next month, enough even to make him the nominal "winner." That is probably too high a guess. But whatever the eventual result, it is agreed that his campaign falls outside the mainstream of Democratic politics. Wallace has yet to attract the support of a single well established politician in the state, and attempts to attract the support of labor for him have failed.

On present showing, the upshot of the Massachusetts primary election will be to add to whatever confusion is created in New Hampshire the week before, or to continue a process of clarification, if one is started there. An unusually good result for any candidate in New Hampshire would certainly help him in Massachusetts.

Things Dixon Talked About

50 YEARS AGO

Tomorrow night, the Reynolds Wire Company holds its first Factory Night at the local YMCA. From the excitement that is running through both the East and West Plants, the evening tomorrow promises to be a big affair. The committees of employees have drawn up a program which begins at 7 o'clock.

A lady of this city has received a letter from her sister in Oswego, New York, in which it is stated that because of the miners' strike people in that community have been hard-pressed to get fuel enough for their kitchen stoves and have been burning buckwheat in their furnaces.

Flourishing prep schools

Despite high tuitions, the depressed economy and studies questioning the economic pay-off of a college degree, college preparatory schools are thriving, at least in New England.

A survey of more than 200 prep schools from Connecticut to Maine by the Higher Education News Service found enrollment increases throughout the region this fall. Some schools reported increases as high as 30 per cent.

Boarding schools, which experienced a decline in popularity during the late 1960s and early 1970s, have rebounded even though annual cost (tuition, room and board) now averages between $3,600 and $5,000.

According to Donald Hagerman, headmaster of Holderness School in New Hampshire, one of the few remaining schools that still requires boys to wear sport coats and ties to class, much of the phenomenon is a reaction to the "polit-icizing" of the public schools.

"Public schools which find themselves embroiled in teacher strikes, busing controversies, frozen budgets and politics have disturbed many parents," he says. "These parents, especially in the large metropolitan areas, fear their children's educations are neglected as the schools become laboratories for social reform and teachers and programs endure the attendant distractions and interruptions."

To these parents, a sound college preparatory program, even though costly, now looks very attractive, he says.

Most American families can't afford college prep schools, of course. But there seems to be some kind of message here that our public school administrators and every professional in the field of mass education might be wise to begin listening to.

Louis under lindens

PARIS (LENS)—Which is the most engaging square in the world? Everybody has his own favorite but for many Parisians it is the Place des Vosges, a square combining architectural harmony with historical association and tucked away a few minutes' walk from Notre Dame.

Built in the early 17th century under Henry IV and his grand vizier, Sully—arguably the best practical political combination France has ever had—the square has known jousts, duels and tournaments; small manufacturing industries nestled under its elegant arcades. King Henry himself used to have no. 1. Later, the Rambouillet at no. 20 used to rub shoulders with the Richelieu at no. 21.

The Place des Vosges—so named because the Vosges department was best at coughing up money for the central government after the 1789 revolution—has this week been the center of bitter controversy. It is on television every evening; front-page news in the Paris dailies. One newspaper, the Quotidien de Paris, is running its own referendum on the subject, with seven questions posed to its readers.

Are they going to pull the place down, then? Not a bit of it. The row is about trees.

Last month the three rows of elms in the square had to be felled because they were suffering from Dutch elm disease. The question is whether or not they should be replaced by lindens.

The no faction (which has the support of President Giscard d'Estaing) says that the opportunity should be seized to leave the Place des Vosges in its pristine nudity as under Henry IV—but there is further dispute about whether or not the chestnuts which happily in summer hide the statue of Louis XIII should be left.

The linden faction is composed mainly of locals who want shade in the summer for grandmothers, or indeed mothers, who sit there while the children play. The row is thus between the aesthetes and the historians and the local-amenity lot.

The lindens are in fact already there in their little root-boxes. But, as the president of the Paris council explained to local inhabitants recently, it is too cold to plant them. The locals went ahead and planted one of them, just for the hell of it.

When Paris is so denuded, compared with London, of green spaces, the more trees the better might seem a good political slogan. And since Paris, under Pompidou, was disfigured by the building of huge office blocks, attention to detail like the trees in the Place des Vosges becomes important. With the elms in the Champs de Mars about to be cut down, the row reflects the desire of Parisians to have more say in their local affairs, a say which they have been largely denied until now.

Behind each tree is a politician waiting for the March 1977, municipal elections, when Paris shall at last have its own elected mayor, like all the other communes in France.

First in the hearts of his fellow countrymen

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

As we celebrate George Washington's birthday on our nation's 200th anniversary, his personality is hopelessly involved in legend.

Tom Paine attacked Washington. But Jefferson, not Paine, delivered history's final verdict: "He was, in every sense of the words, a wise, a good and a very great man."

Usually, time sits down before the portrait of a great man and finishes it by dint of long successive labors. And not always does the dross of attackers fall away, leaving the gold of truth revealed. But sometimes this happens and when it does you have George Washington. History refused to wait.

By all accounts the father of our country was not a very congenial man; rather colorless, cool, aloof, unapproachable, not humorous and not a good-mixer. But the great fact about Washington was his character—the fact of character.

It was the special genius of Washington and the atmosphere his character created that let loose the genius of the other men around him: the immortal circle of our Founding Fathers.

The truth was like rock under Washington's feet. The pulpit from which he preached was a high one. Said Washington: "Let us raise a standard to which good men can repair." He told us that we must enlighten ourselves, control ourselves, ennoble ourselves—and then we can build our country.

Here were about four million people settle over vast areas and wildernesses, setting out to do in reality such construction of a new government as Athenian philosophers 22 centuries earlier had done only in theory. When Plato wrote "The Republic" he was writing only of a dream.

By the Peace of Paris (1763) the French gave Canada to England and relinquished Louisiana to the inert hands of declining Spain. Britain possessed most of the rest of the continent. From the British viewpoint our American Revolution was a civil war. And the British motherland forces would not stop them. Or could it?

Soon after the first victories, Washington's army was torn by conflict, haggard with want and almost broken by despair. It was to be two years before we would have the help of the French. The British had all but won the south and George Washington was being defeated.

In April he was battling for New York and half his army stood in Brooklyn Heights—some 9,000 men. In August Gen. Sir William Howe deployed about 20,000 troops against them. The patriots were outnumbered, outmaneuvered, defeated. Then in November Howe captured Manhattan's Fort Washington with nearly 3,000 prisoners. British gunboats controlled the Hudson River as far as West Point, where only a hungry garrison and a river chain of rusted iron barred the path.

As if caught in an iron vise, Washington was more than once in danger of his own capture. His army melted away. It was evident that one more British victory could split the Hudson River and, in the split, destroy the last hope of our new republic.

Then Washington crossed the Delaware. And this marked the turn to victory.

On Christmas night in 1776 Washington knelt on the bank and prayed for the safety of his tattered men. He closed with the words that became our new nation's motto: "In God We Trust."

By 3 a.m. Washington landed the last of his guns in the whirl of a driving storm. "Keep by your officers," he shouted as he and his troops began the nine-mile trek through wind and sleet to Trenton.

Call him indispensable

Much about the results of his labors would certainly surprise him today, yet it was his hand more than any other of his heroic era that shaped the nation now marking its 200th year.

Indispensable as the military leader who wrought a miracle against the world's foremost power, he was even more so as a political leader, although politics had never been his forte.

For with the victorious conclusion of the war, the battle was still only half won. The question then and for many uncertain years to come was whether the fragile political experiment resulting from the war could be preserved and nurtured into a viable nation.

Abroad, the world was still largely a hostile one of monarchy and entrenched privilege. At home, much of the population—possibly more than half—had opposed or was indifferent to independence. And the patriots, while dominant, were also faction-ridden.

Not a political man, it was nevertheless his politic genius that brought the factions together for a common good, that could reconcile within his administration the aristocratic radicalism of a Thomas Jefferson and the autocratic conservatism of an Alexander Hamilton.

Setting a precedent with almost every major decision, he gave enduring substance to the noble ideals and stirring words of others.

He was succeeded by more dynamic leaders, more innovative men. But it was upon the foundation he established that they built. His strength, integrity and pragmatic vision—in short, his greatness—were indispensable to their later achievements.

The United States today might indeed surprise George Washington. But it would not leave him at a loss. Challenged now as then by a nation's problems and opportunities, his response would certainly be once more: Here we stand, from here we go forward.

Japanese yen for the rising sun

The "Land of the Rising Sun" is becoming the land of disappearing sunlight. This is especially true in Japan's larger cities where, in addition to pollution and smog, another enemy of sunshine is at work.

The proliferation of high-rise buildings in recent years has been causing disputes between owners of the multistory buildings and nearby residents and landowners over the "right to sunshine."

Sunlight is important to the Japanese for more than aesthetic reasons. Because their homes are lightly built and uninsulated, they need as much sun as they can get in the chilly wintertime. And in these days of rapidly rising fuel costs, there is an actual monetary value attached to the amount of sunlight one's home receives.

The government has decided to step in and provide compensation for those forced to live in the shadows, reports Focus Japan magazine. The Home Affairs Ministry has devised a scheme to allow local municipalities to reduce property taxes on plots of land near high-rise buildings that are deprived of sunlight. The decision acknowledges the fact that property in the shade has realized lower selling prices recently and that landowners have suffered financial losses.

The tax reductions, which will be determined by the local government but which cannot exceed a 20 per cent ceiling set by the ministry, went into effect on Jan. 1, when the official revaluation of land prices was conducted.

In previous revaluations, such adverse influences on the price of land as automobile noises, vibrations and exhaust emissions, have been taken into consideration. Loss of sunlight, however, has never before been regarded as a minus factor.

"I said, 'Don't turn a deaf ear to progress!'"

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE G-407: Thelma G., aged 37, suffered a psychological shock.

"Dr. Crane," she exclaimed,
"we bought an old homestead in our village."

"And have lived in it happily for 15 years."

"Since I have always been interested in music, we prided ourselves on an upright piano my mother bequeathed to me."

"And our three children would gather around it to sing, while I played popular songs, as well as church hymns."

"For I am also the church pianist."

"But the other night, while we were having dinner in the dining room, the entire house shook and we heard a terrible crash!"

"When we quickly investigated, we found that the piano had suddenly fallen through the floor, clear down into the basement."

"For what we hadn't realized was the fact termites had slowly been eating away the joists that supported the living room floor boards."

"Dr. Crane, just imagine what might have happened if we had all been at the piano singing at the very moment the floor gave way!"

2-Legged Termites
Far worse than this piano tragedy will be the crash of our superb "Free Enterprise" system when two-legged termites erode the "planks" in both political parties and let Communism take over.

Montesquieu (1689-1755) was an astute French political philosopher who warned:

"A nation may lose its liberties in a day, and not miss the in a century."

Our Republic has far surpassed the entire socialistic and communistic nations in agricultural output, manufacturing, colleges, as well as support of the Red Cross, churches, and philanthropy to other nations (plus our wheat to Russia, India, et al).

So why change economic horses in the middle of the stream?

Alas, our most dangerous "population explosion" is among the hordes of two-legged bureaucratic "termites" who are bankrupting small business firms and eroding the profit incentive of the oil companies, auto factories, steel mills and other big manufacturing plants which are the main economic
"joists" under our economy.

Despite slanted, rabble-rousing talk to the contrary, just look at the earnings last year of our major American firms and you'll see most of them didn't average even five per cent
AFTER TAXES!

Thousands of small merchants, maybe with no more than five or six employees, have been driven bankrupt by the two-legged termites via inane regulations, restrictions and a stifling load of red tape forms which preempt the valuable creative energy of our employees.

Those five or six workers
then get unemployment checks for upwards of a year; plus welfare, food stamps and other aid from you working Americans!

Board to probe aid payments

SPRINGFIELD—State Public Aid Director James L. Trainor today announced appointment of a nine-member Nursing Home Reimbursement Board that will be charged with reviewing rates paid to facilities which experience financial hardships.

Members representing the nursing home industry are: Leon Shlofrock, president, Chicago Residential Care Assn.; Rabbi Hillel H. Yampol, executive director, Illinois Assn. of Health Care Facilities; Ray White, chairman of the Health Care Committee of Illinois and past president, Illinois Nursing Home Assn.; and Neil L. Gaynes, executive director, Illinois Assn. of Homes for the Aging.

Public members are: Theodore J. T. Short, principal, Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Company; Scott Jones, member of United Charities Board of Directors and Committee on Aging, president Gardner

Jones & Company, and chairman, Hinsdale Retirement Homes; Walter Kendall, assistant professor of law, John Marshall Law School; Harold O. Swank, former IDPA director; and John E. Murphy, executive director, Hospital Sisters of the third Order of St. Francis, Central Management Agency.

According to Trainor, the Board will review cost information to determine whether a hardship exists which would justify an additional rate increase on top of the $4 per month, per bed increase recently given providers of skilled care and the higher level of intermediate care.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Your rewards will be greater today if you take pride in what you do and work to please others.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
This is a good day to get together with an old friend you've neglected a bit lately. Let her know you still care.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
You are adept at closing a deal today, particularly if there is something of value in it for you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Your words will have greater impact today than you're apt to give yourself credit for. Others won't take them lightly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Your material prospects look very encouraging today. Keep an eye peeled for situations that could add to your resources.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
You can achieve desired results today if you don't lose track of what it will mean to you. Think of yourself, but don't be selfish.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Don't be discouraged today if that which you hope to accomplish gets off to a slow start. Things will get better.

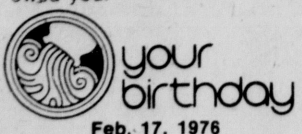

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
Today you are likely to place the interests of others far above your own. This won't go unnoticed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
Conditions look favorable today where your career and finances are concerned. Opportunities may come through friends.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Concentrate on a major goal today. You should be able to make substantial progress if you apply yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
You'll get better results today from things you do with someone else, than if you work alone.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
You might now begin to see a return on obligations that are due you. Don't refuse anything owed you.

There will be a more profitable market for your knowledge and skills this year. Work or career advancement is likely if you use your talents wisely.

People in the news

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — Billionaire recluse Howard Hughes has been named defendant in a federal court suit here, but no one has found him to tell him so.

In a legal advertisement this week, U.S. Dist. Judge Edward T. Gignoux ordered Hughes to reply by March 16 or risk a judgment by default. The ad will run once a week for two more weeks.

The case involves four Hughes films: "Hell's Angels" released in 1930, "Scarface" and "Shame of the Nation" in 1932, and "The Outlaw," a 1949 film starring Jane Russell.

Last September, one of Hughes' companies, Summa Corp., filed suit charging copyright violations by Classic Film Museum, Inc., of Dover-Foxcroft, in its distribution of the three earlier films.

Classic then filed a counter-suit to which Hughes' name was added when Summa said it was wholly owned by him. Classic claims that Summa's rights to the three films had expired and that Summa had no exclusive right to "The Outlaw."

Hughes earlier this week was reported to have moved from the Bahamas to Acapulco.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Firemen rescued David Bourassa, 20, from an air duct in which he was wedged tight early on Friday the 13th.

He might have stayed there except that two police officers said they spotted what looked like a burglar inside a bar.

The officers, who booked Bourassa for investigation of burglary, said a plastic bag filled with coins made his pocket too bulky and prevented him from slipping through the duct.

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP) — The Rev. Martin Luther King Sr. says former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter is "one of the finest men among us."

The father of Martin Luther King Jr., the slain civil rights leader, denounced what he said was a recent accusation that Carter, a Democratic presidential contender, is a racist.

In a speech Friday to students at Georgia Southwestern College, King said the accusation "is nothing but a lie. I know of one vote he will get."

King told about 500 students at a Black History Week program that he was not bitter about the slayings of his son and his wife, and he said he would continue "doing my job of being every man's brother."

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Detective Frank Lugo probably won't be demonstrating the use of his service revolver again in the near future.

Lugo, 25, was hospitalized Thursday night after one such demonstration, for a group of pharmacists.

He accidentally shot himself in the shoulder.

Health group sets meeting

The February meeting of the Sauk Valley Chapter of the National Health Federation was held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Gertrude E. Carpenter. Many new members joined.

The new charter, received from the main office in Monrovia, Calif., was displayed.

The objectives of the National Health Federation are to benefit the health and welfare of the nation's people and support the freedom of choice in health matters.

Anyone interested in joining the organization may contact Mrs. Marian Finn, president.

Controversy over bill to get rid of wild horses

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration is pushing legislation to make it easier to round up and get rid of wild horses. But opponents say the measure would turn the animals into dog food.

The legislation is a response to ranchers and federal land managers who say the wild herds are growing fast under federal protection and are taking public grass out of the mouths of cattle and sheep.

In the heat of the issue, friends of the horses say the administration's plan amounts to "mechanized massacre" and a return to the evils of the days of the old mustangers.

Wild burros also would be affected by the legislation.

The issue pits ranchers who run their stock on public lands against a widening ring of conservation groups who think the 20 per cent of the nation's land owned by the public should be used for other purposes, such as recreation, wilderness and horses.

The nation's wild horse herd has grown to 50,000 head and is growing at a rate of 20 per cent annually, ranchers say.

A rancher can run cattle on open federal range for $1 per head per month. In Nevada, for example, federal land accounts for 96 per cent of the seventh largest state.

A 1971 law bans aircraft and motor vehicles in hunting wild horses and requires the Bureau of Land Management to find a good home for any animals that are caught. They cannot be slaughtered.

The bureau, the chief agency for the public lands, has led about a half-dozen roundups in the 10 Western states under the 1971 law in response to complaints from ranchers. About 700 wild horses were captured.

In the old days, hunters for the wild horses would use pick-up trucks and aircraft to herd the animals. Once caught, most were shipped off to be made into dog food. In the West, mustanging was a quick way to earn a few extra dollars on a weekend.

Under the administration-backed legislation, the use of vehicles and aircraft would be resumed and the bureau would be allowed to transfer ownership of the horses with no questions asked.

That means dog food, the conservationists say.

The administration claims the current law is cumbersome and expensive. It says it costs an average of $550 to catch each horse. Besides, two men were hurt in a high-speed mounted chase, and vehicles would be safer, the administration says.

Horse groups say the administration estimate is exaggerated. They say the number of grazing permits should be cut back to protect the range. In Utah, they say, the government allows 600,000 cattle and sheep on public land while the wild horses there are estimated at only 1,500 head.

WEATHER FORECASTING is no trick as practiced by President Ford — stick a hand out and if it gets wet, it's raining. The political climate in New Hampshire is another matter, however. The forecast there continues uncertain for the first Ford-Reagan primary test.

Soviets can't shake drink problem

MOSCOW (AP) — After nearly 60 years of Soviet power, drink still is the curse of the Soviet Union's working classes and the Kremlin doesn't seem able to do much about it.

While many Western countries also have serious problems with alcohol, the issue is especially touchy in the Soviet Union, where the Communists proclaim they are creating a new — and sober — Soviet man.

Twenty years ago, Soviet authorities maintained that they had eliminated the basic causes for excess drinking: exploitation, injustice and the "poverty of the toiling masses."

Yet drunkenness persists despite a series of antidrinking laws, fulminations by top leaders, Communist party decrees and newspaper articles pointing out the evil consequences of strong drink.

A drive through Moscow streets in the evening can in some areas become an obstacle course of drunken pedestrians. Restaurants are always full of Russians downing glass after glass of vodka and cognac. The Soviets also probably produce more home brew than any country in the world.

Western businessmen are told to beware the vodka-laced meals offered by their Russian hosts. Foreign delegations have hazy memories of being entertained at parties where toasts to "peace and friendship" become too numerous to count.

In a statement that could be widely applied in the Soviet Union, the newspaper Izvestia pointed to one town where the people drank vodka "to celebrate every conceivable occasion — birthdays, Saturdays, Sundays, paydays, the arrival of relatives, vacations, purchases, sales, etc."

The frequent press reports on misuse of alcohol show the problem is too serious to ignore in the Soviet Union. But the Kremlin won't divulge the true dimensions of alcoholic consumption because it probably would reflect unfavorably on life in the Soviet Union.

Since 1963, statistical books have dropped figures on alcohol production and there is no breakdown offered on the amount of state revenue derived from the sale of vodka and other spirits.

Hubbys who want to cheat find a way

Dear Readers: The wet noodle comes out of temporary retirement. I goofed.

Recently I told a wife, "If your husband is friendly, decent, supportive, comes straight home every night after work and doesn't go anywhere without you, he is not fooling around. Stop worrying. He's all yours."

I was one of those squares who thought lunch hours were for eating lunch. But I was mistaken and hundreds of women let me know it.

Here are some samples of what the week's mail has been like. From Green Bay, Wis.: Dear Ann Landers: Where have you been all your life? Your naive knocks me out. Any married man who wants to fool around can do it and never miss the 5:02 train.

One day last October I ran out of gas two blocks from my husband's office. I decided to walk over and call the nearest service station. It was 1:15 p.m.

When I arrived, the receptionist appeared to be very nervous. Finally I went to my husband's office, knocked on his door (which was locked) and announced myself. He shouted in a panicky voice, "Sorry — I can't open the door now. I'm busy." I decided to wait.

Twenty minutes later, he walked out, red-faced and perspiring. He tried to steer me out of the building but by then I had it all figured out. I brushed past him, went straight to the private washroom off his office and there was his young secretary, crouched in the corner, wig askew, makeup a mess and ready to faint from embarrassment.

I soon learned the shenanigans had been going on for two years. So here's a bucket of crow, Miss Landers. Be my guest. — Dumb Wife

From Scarsdale: Dear Ann: My husband was home every night — 6:40 sharp. But every Saturday afternoon he played poker with the boys at a local hotel. They rented a room in order not to "inconvenience" their wives. My husband dropped out of the club in 1972 but I didn't know about it until 1974 when one of the wives told me how much the fellows missed him. He continued to go to that hotel, same as always. You see, Miss Landers, the little rascal continued to play, but not poker. — The Joker Was Wild

From Washington, D.C.: Dear Ann: My husband never worked late and never went anywhere without me. I thought I knew where he was every minute. He used to jog every morning. I decided to follow him when he left the house to jog during the worst blizzard of the year. He jogged right over to the home of my best friend, a widow who lived six blocks away. That's where he was getting all that wonderful exercise. — Don't Tell ME About Husbands

From Seattle: Dear Ann: How dumb can you get? Don't you know that a man who wants to cheat will find a way? And he can do it very easily within his normal working schedule. My ex-husband was in the advertising business. He used to tell me that most of his work was done during lunch — with clients. I believed him until the day I changed beauty shops and spotted his car in front of an out-of-the-way motel. I cancelled my hair appointment and waited by his car for an hour. At precisely 2:20 he emerged — with a 20-year-old girl who used to sit with our kids. When are you going to learn what the world is really like? — Eyes Opened

Dear Eyes: I just did. Thanks. (Copyright 1976, Field Enterprises, Inc.)

Homemakers News

When you buy a vitamin supplement, you get vitamins only. When you spend that money for nutritious food, you get more than vitamins; you get other nutrients as well.

Good nutrition is more than just vitamins. It's getting all the nutrients — the proteins, carbohydrates, fats, minerals, and water — along with vitamins.

Vitamin pills are promoted as the answer for everything from fighting "the battle of the bulge" to maintaining that youthful beauty after 40. Seeking an easy answer, some people turn toward the vitamin pill as the way to good nutrition.

The safest, most economical, and most enjoyable way of getting all the nutrients you need, including vitamins, is by eating a wide variety of foods — not by taking food supplements.

Let's face it, sitting down to a delicious meal is a lot more fun than swallowing an assortment of pills.

If you are concerned about your family's eating habits or have questions about which foods should be eaten for better health, ask your Lee County Extension Home Economics Adviser for a copy of "What to Eat and Why," circular 1101. Heart Disease Rate Is Beginning To Decline

A downward trend in heart disease death rates has occurred, yet nearly half the deaths recorded this year will be the result of heart and blood vessel disorders, reports Lawrence O'Reilly, University of Illinois Extension health educator.

Heart disease alone is expected to claim more than 750,000 lives in 1976, or about 38 per cent of all deaths in the nation. While these figures are grim and point out the need to do what you can to reduce your risks, there is reason for guarded optimism.

Since 1969, heart disease death rates for white males in the 35-64 year age group have shown a slight, yet steady, decrease. O'Reilly notes that an 8-per cent decrease was registered between 1969 and 1973 for men in this age group. During the same period, heart disease death rates among white women aged 35-64 decreased by six per cent.

While authorities are not certain why the downward trend has occurred, O'Reilly reports that most agree that a combination of forces is probably involved. Mentioned most often are improved medical care, a decline in cigarette smoking, increased detection and treatment of high blood pressure, changes in dietary habits, and public awareness of the importance of fitness.

Some observers suggest the decline may be the result of successful health education efforts resulting in a modification of life styles.

Four Basic Senior Programs Available In Illinois

Tax assistance and supplemental income are among the basic governmental programs available to Illinois elderly residents.

Of the four basic programs for the elderly, three are also available to disabled residents: The Circuit Breaker program, Additional (sales tax) Grant and the federal-state Supplemental Security Income. The Homestead Exemption property tax reduction in only for taxpayers aged 65 and older.

Senior Find, a project of the non-profit Senior Action Coalition of Illinois, identified the four major programs:

—Circuit Breaker is a program of property tax assistance for elderly (65 and older) or disabled Illinois residents whose annual household incomes are less than $10,000. Both home owners and renters are eligible for annual cash grants. In order to receive a grant, one's property taxes, or the equivalent in rent, must exceed four per cent of income. The program applies to tax year 1972 and afterward.

—Additional (sales tax) Grant is a new program, similar to the circuit breaker, but broader in terms of eligibility. Any person who is elderly or disabled, is a resident of Illinois, and has a household income of less than $10,000 a year is eligible for an annual cash grant of $50 to $100. This group includes those who are not eligible for property tax assistance, such as residents of public housing. The program took effect in 1975 and applies to tax years beginning in 1974.

—Supplemental Security Income is a federal program designed to insure a minimum monthly income for aged, blind, and disabled persons. The federal government is now providing income supplements to insure monthly incomes of $157 for an individual and $236 for couples. Certain families may also receive additional payments from the state of Illinois, depending on need.

—Homestead Exemptions is a property tax reduction for taxpayers aged 65 and older. The only qualification is age; disabled persons are not eligible under current law. This program is administered at the local government level and, unlike the above three, assistance does not come in the form of a grant or check. Instead, the local assessor reduces the equalized assessed valuation of a homestead property belonging to a senior citizen by up to $1,500.

Senior citizens who want more information, either about available programs or about Senior Find, should contact the Senior Action Coalition at 3 West Old Town Mall, Springfield, Ill. 62701. To call toll free, dial 1-800-252-6565.

Diamond bid is best shot

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Oswald: "No matter what system you play there are going to be occasions when you just don't have a proper bid."

Jim: "Even when you have an obvious bid, it doesn't mean that you will get the best result from your action."

Oswald: "South has 14 high-card points, made up of aces and kings. His hand clearly calls for an opening bid, but he is too weak for one notrump and has no biddable suit. He opens one diamond. North bids rather unscientifically to six diamonds."

Jim: "The contract wraps up. South draws trumps with three leads, cashes dummy's king and queen of hearts, enters his hand with the ace of spades, discards one of dummy's clubs on the ace of hearts and winds up with twelve easy tricks."

Oswald: "I have to admit that I constructed the North. East and West hands. A club lead beats six diamonds if North plays the hand and six

One of a series of pictures of noted Americans and events in our history which will be printed in The Telegraph in recognition of the United State's Bicentennial in cooperation with the John Hancock Insurance Co.

Cyrus Hall McCormick, whose invention of the reaping machine which is most identified with the Midwest breadbasket, was born in Virginia in 1809. He invented the reaper in 1831 and in 1845 moved to Cincinnati, Ohio, and two years later to Chicago. It is there that McCormick's invention prospered and today the sprawling International Harvester Corp. works in Chicago stand as a monument to the importance of McCormick's invention. He founded the McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago which trains persons for the Presbyterian ministry. He was also the benefactor of many other charitable and religious institutions. McCormick died in 1884, at the age of 75.

Savings bonds are a ripoff, says economist

PITTSBURGH (AP) — "Take Stock in America, 200 years at the same location," boasts the government in promoting U.S. savings bonds. "Greatest ripoff in modern history," charges Milton Friedman, a widely known economist.

Buying savings bonds is a way of life for millions of Americans. They hold $68 billion worth of them, or about one-fifth of the national debt. Last year, 9.5 million persons paid an average of $33 per month for bonds through payroll deduction plans at 40,000 businesses.

Friedman, a University of Chicago professor, says the interest is consistently eaten up by inflation caused by the same government which pushes bond sales.

Current interest is 6 per cent if the bond is held for five years. A bank savings account pays about 5.5 per cent. A $1,000 savings certificate will pay 7.25 per cent if held four years.

"Businessmen and bankers serve as heads of prominent committees urging people to buy savings bonds for the future," Friedman said in a recent lecture here. "If they tried to sell their own bonds on that basis, the Securities and Exchange Commission would be after them like a shot."

"Every one of these people knows that anyone who has bought savings bonds in the past 10 years has been taken to the cleaners."

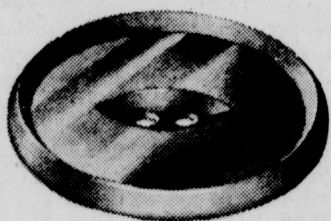

Friedman said that interest on bonds has not kept up with inflation and that the original capital put in them buys less today.

"To add insult to injury, people must pay income taxes on the false interest," he said. He said savings bonds would be a good investment if the government not only paid interest at maturity, but added, say, a cost-of-living index factor. "That would be an honest issue," he said in a telephone interview from Chicago.

Polo girl wins

Crowning of Miss Sauk Valley during festival

Miss Scholl, a SVC student and a 1975 graduate of Polo High School, won a $350 scholarship in the local contest. She will be eligible to participate in the Miss Illinois pageant to be held in Aurora in July.

First runner-up of the Miss Sauk pageant was Rita Van Wassenhove, Deer Grove; second runner-up was Wendy James, Lyndon. Julie Block, Sterling, was chosen Miss Congeniality by the other contestants.

Eight area girls competed in the contest, which was held as part of the third annual Arts and Crafts Festival at Sauk Valley College.

The three-day festival, featuring area artists and craftsmen, as well as area entertainers, drew large crowds each day, as can be seen in photograph below.

Flames destroy barn, contents

Dixon Rural Fire Chief Ed Voss hoses down the area surrounding a barn engulfed in flames on property adjacent to the Dixon Developmental Center. Four Dixon Rural fire trucks, a city truck and a unit from the Developmental Center were called to the site shortly before 10 a.m. this morning. The cause of the blaze is presently unknown. The barn was on property owned by Dr. Wilbur Stitzel and Wilbur Stitzel Jr. Flames destroyed the structure along with its contents, including 850 bales of hay and straw, plus several pieces of farm equipment owned by tenant Dennis Swartz investigators said. Amboy rallies for Three Rivers win Clippers slip by Mustangs

By JIM FOX
Telegraph Sports Writer
AMBOY — Somebody has to prove that the old cliché really do contain some sense. Amboy worked on the old relic saying that the third time a charm, as the Clippers downed the stubborn Morrison Mustangs 65-61, here, Saturday night in a Three Rivers conference contest.

Twice previously in this 1975-76 basketball season Amboy has fallen victims to the Mustangs. In the initial encounter, Morrison slipped by the Clippers 49-45 in an overtime tilt in the Mt. Morris Thanksgiving tournament. In the regular conference bout at Morrison the hosts captured at 55-49 decision. But the third time was a charm for the Clippers on their home stomping grounds Saturday evening.

Amboy utilized a 60 per cent shooting second half to overcome a Mustang lead and slip to the key victory that assures the Clippers of third place in the Three Rivers. Amboy junior center Joe Bothe led the second-half onslaught with 20 of his game high 27 markers that pushed the hosts past the Morrison small advantage and boosted the Clippers into a 12-point margin at one point in the third period.

The story of the game for Amboy was in the second half. Out rebounded and out shot in the first two quarters Amboy came back charging in the final two periods to impressively overcome this year's Morrison jinx. The Clippers took control in the third quarter of the boards and with the 12-point performance of Bothe Amboy dominated.

The game was nip-and-tuck in the first and second quarters with Morrison grabbing advantages after both periods. Morrison center Gary Vanhuizen, who totaled 20 points on the night, collected six markers in the first period while Kevin Hook dropped in four as the Mustangs hit consistently.

Steve Powers and Greg Esgar, playing in their last home game for the Clippers on senior night, connected for the first three Amboy points with Powers picking up the bucket. Esgar dumped in a 15-footer at 4:23 to pull the hosts within one at 8-7 on in early comeback route.

Bothe put in a little lay-up at 2:58 to give the Clippers their first lead in the contest. Randy

Blackburn hit on a long-jumper seconds later as the good guys grabbed a three-point margin. Vanhuizen connected on a lay-up at 1:35 and then a tip-in at :38 to counter a Brian Dempsey 15-footer as the visitors remained close at 13-12. With :03 left in the initial quarter

Jeff Tiesman picked up his first points of the game, enroute to a 16-marker night, on a nifty lay-up and suddenly Morrison was back on top after the first eight minutes 14-13.

Kevin Powers made a brief appearance off the Amboy bench in the opening minutes of the second quarter and made his time in count as the junior sank an offensive rebound to push the hosts out in front 15-14. Esgar put in a lay-up and Blackburn two charity tosses as Amboy grabbed a five-point margin at 5:59 of 19-14.

Matt Farrell, who collected 15 markers in the contest, put the Mustangs on the board at 5:50 with a 20-footer and then Morrison ran off its own scoring streak with Tom Wilkens and Vanhuizen pushing through a pair of free throws each that gave the visitors a 20-19 advantage at 4:47.

Dempsey put Amboy back on top with two charity tosses before Farrell hit on a long one as Morrison grabbed the lead in the second quarter see-saw battle. The Mustangs used offensive rebounding strength in the last three minutes to control the score that allowed the visitors to grab the advantage at 30-27 at the half. The Clippers last six points came from the hands of Steve Powers and Bothe, who each knocked in three markers.

"At the half, they had a 20-12 rebounding advantage over us," commented Amboy head coach Gary Croegaert. "We had a few words to say about that. We really turned it around and controlled the boards, especially in the third period."

The control of the boards, a 60 per cent shooting per centage, practically errorless ball handling, team work and the 20-point effort of Bothe all combined to overcome Morrison in the final two periods of action. Bothe netted 12 markers in the third period, with fine assists from Esgar, Blackburn and Dempsey. A Bothe lay-up at 5:11 boosted Amboy into the lead at 35-34 and it was all Clippers from then out.

Morrison managed only 10 points in the disastrous third period, with Tiesman picking up eight. Vanhuizen put through the other bucket. Blackburn notched four points to aid teammate Bothe.

At 37-36 the Clippers went on a scoring binge of 11 consecutive markers to control a 48-36 margin and all but buy the Mustangs. Bothe collected six points in the spree while Esgar and Blackburn added two each.

Tiesman hit for four markers in the final minute of the period to bring his team within eight and make it seem like it was far from over as the fourth period started. Morrison outscored Amboy in the last quarter, but a trio of three-point plays kept the hosts on top and psychologically ruined the Mustangs.

Steve Powers converted a three-point package while Bothe, who picked up eight markers in the fourth quarter, 20 in the second half and 27 on the night, hit for a pair of three-pointers.

Vanhuizen paced Morrison with eight points in the final period with tough to defend fade away shots. Both centers, Bothe and Vanhuizen, displayed fine shooting form, tough defense and all-around excellent play in the game.

The real key in the final minute that assured the big Amboy victory was the clutch free throw shooting of reserve Jim Braid. The little junior popped in three of four charity tosses that pushed Amboy up by four points and nailed it for the hosts from a stubborn Morrison squad that wanted to keep coming back in the last four minutes.

"One of the most pleasing things for a coach to see is that eighth man come in and respond to the situation," stated Croegaert on the clutch performance of Braid. "Jim does not see a lot of action, but to see him respond in a key situation like that last minute is beautiful. He showed a lot of cool out there. Jim Braid is really the reason we won."

"This was a big one. We played super ball the second half and I am very pleased with our performance. All our kids played well. They also did not want to lose to Morrison for the third time."

"Dempsey did a good job of running the offense. He is a good ball-handler and almost impossible to press. We only had seven turnovers on the night compared to Morrison's 13. Our ball-handling has to be the biggest improvement of the club."

"I am also happy for our two seniors, Steve Powers and Greg Esgar. We have never lost a senior night game. Both Powers and Esgar played a good game."

Bothe controlled the boards with seven defensive and three offensive rebounds of the 24 for Amboy. Morrison grabbed 33 on the night. Croegaert called assists the difference in the well played basketball game and Esgar and Dempsey combined for 18 between them, with Esgar picking up 10.

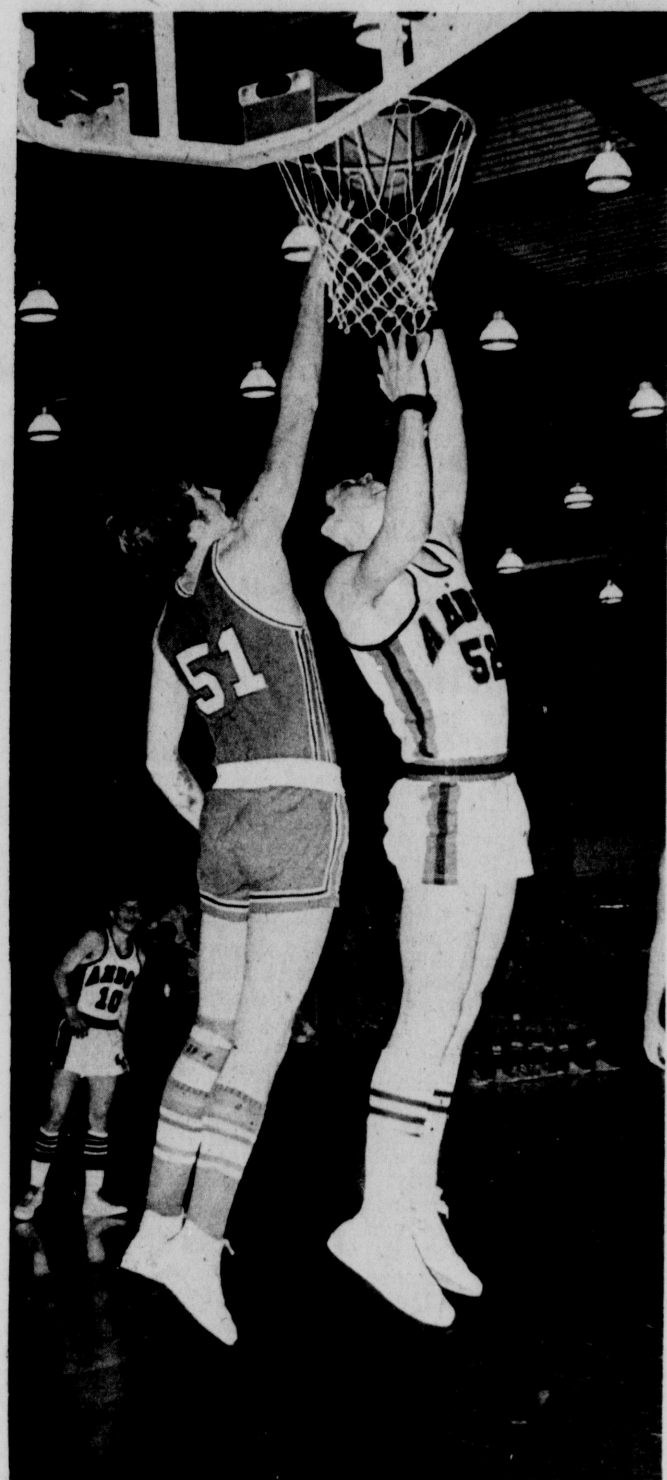

Amboy placed three starters in the double figures column with Bothe leading the pack with 27. Blackburn popped in 11 points while Steve Powers added 10.

The Clippers travel to Erie Friday night in a conference contest in their last regular season game. Amboy holds a 9-4 conference mark and 16-7 overall record.

Dixon has two champions at the Rock Falls District

By TED TRULOCK JR.
Telegraph Sports Writer

ROCK FALLS—The Dixon Dukes varsity wrestling team had two champions in the NCIC district meet, here, Saturday night. Those two champions are brothers John and Joe Green.

John Green won the 98 class by defeating Al Olalde of Sterling 14-3. John's season record is now 18-9.

Junior Joe Green took the 105 crown by pinning La Salle-Peru's Ed Nadolski in 5:13. Joe's record is 16-4.

Sterling's undefeated Doug Schafer took the 112 class and teammate Paul Lancaster took 119. Conference champion Jim Magnafici fell to second just behind Lancaster 5-1.

Scott Smigel (126) of La Salle-Peru won his class and Sterling's Mark Metzler took the 132 division, while Rock Falls' Tim Fiorini took the 138 class.

Dixon's Steve Lybarger was defeated by Sterling Scott Zulauf 10-4. Lybarger finished the season with a 25-7 record.

In the 155 class, Rory Fullmer of Rock Falls won it as did Rochelle's Chris Rice at 167. Tim Conkling took the 185 division for Princeton. The heavyweight class was won by Rock Falls' undefeated Pat McDonnell.

The Sterling Golden Warriors won the meet with 118 points. The Rock Falls Rockets edged the Dukes 74½-74 for second place.

The wrestling sectionals will be held Friday and Saturday at Dixon's Lancaster Gymnasium.

Ohio falls 79-67

DEPU—The Ohio Bulldogs fell out of a share of first place in the Little Eight after a 79-67 loss to the Depue Little Giants, here, Friday night. The winners were 29 of 49 from the field while the Bulldogs tallied 30 baskets while launching 88 shots.

Depue was six of eight in the first quarter but still trailed 15-13 but the Little Giants then put together shooting efforts of 8-17, 10-15 and 5-9 to wrap up their fifth win in six Little Eight decisions.

Ohio was 7-20, 9-20, 6-17 and 8-31. "In the third quarter, we tried to run with Depue and we can't do that," revealed Ohio Coach Dave Mead. "We were up by one going into the second half but they doubled the score on us in the third quarter."

"And with the exception of the Tiskilwa game, each of our five losses so far this season has happened when we have tried to run with the other team. This is not our game. We have to run our disciplined offense and get our third and fourth shots if needed to get the basket.

"They were also 21 of 25 from the free-throw line while we were only seven of 17," Mead added. "I was pleased with our defensive effort except with our four losses trying to run, you think we would learn pretty soon what our game is and how to play it."

"If we salvage anything from this game, maybe it will make us realize we need to run our offense and execute it well. We need to get people on the boards for the rebounds and we need to get shots from where we want them. We can't go out roaming around on defense, either."

Ray John Galindo and Keith Garcia tallied eight points each while Hank Peterson got six in the third quarter for Depue. Peterson ended with 29 points. Galindo and Garcia added 16 each. Jim Brandau pumped home 11 field goals to pace Ohio with 22 markers. Tom Yucus added 13 while Dan Piper and Keith Yucus chipped in with a dozen apiece.

Ohio held a 49-29 board advantage. Brandau hauled down 16 caroms, Tom Yucus 15 and Keith Yucus nine. Peterson had 13 for Depue. Piper had eight assists, Duane Blaine seven and Brandau three. Piper, Keith Yucus and Herb Dremann pilfered four steals each.

Brandau has 37 in Ohio victory

OHIO—Jim Brandau tallied a career-best 37 points on 17 baskets and three free throws, here, Saturday night to pace the Ohio Bulldogs to an 80-61 non-conference basketball victory over the Paw Paw Bulldogs.

Brandau zeroed in seven baskets in the second quarter and added nine markers in the final frame. The 6'4" senior guard sank 17 of 22 field-goal attempts. "We kept switching defenses on them," revealed Dave Mead, Ohio varsity coach, "and we maintained quite a bit of pressure."

"They did the same to us, though, and as a result we had 29 turnovers and Paw Paw 28. We did a good job containing Marc Hanson the first half when we limited him to only two points."

The Bulldogs ended with 36 baskets in 65 attempts for 55 per cent while Paw Paw was 23 of 54 for 43 per cent. Ohio held a 38-22 edge on the boards with Gary Phillips getting nine, Brandau eight and Tom Yucus seven.

Duane Blaine chipped in with six assists and a steal while Dan Piper had six of each. Brandau added three assists and four steals, Keith Yucus three and two, respectively, while Joe Cooney got two and three.

Keith Yucus, Piper and Phillips backed Brandau with five baskets for 10 points apiece. Hanson paced Paw Paw with 16 markers on eight field goals. Jon Goble added 13 and Steve Jones 10.

Ohio, now 16-5 for the year, will host Tampico Friday in a game that counts both in the Bureau Valley and Little Eight standings. Paw Paw, now 3-12, hosts Malta Tuesday.

MALTA — Tom Munch drilled in 23 points while Steve Peterson got 17 as the Malta Mustangs edged the Franklin Center Eagles 72-68 in a non-conference basketball game. The win was the second of the season for Malta over the Eagles in three attempts.

Franklin Center was hampered by foul trouble as four starters finished the game on the bench due to five personals. "That was the key," Dennis Kessel, Franklin Center coach, stated, "we had an eight-point lead with six minutes to go when (Doug) Westra fouled out."

"We were then unable to cope with their 6'6" boy (Munch). Doug Hillison got in late because of a wrenched back and we just could not contend with their strength inside. All in all, we played good basketball but we had too many turnovers late in the game and they were getting second and third shots at the basket in the fourth quarter."

Munch had nine baskets and five free throws for his 23 markers while Peterson added five buckets and seven charity tosses. Jeff Jahn paced the Eagles with 40 points on 15 baskets and 10 foul shots. Jeff Roop chipped in with 11.

Franklin Center, now 18-4 for the year, returns home for the championship game of the Upstate Illini Conference Friday versus Orangeville. The doors will open at 5:45 p.m. The championship game ball will be used in a raffle with fans able to purchase chances Friday night.

Mounders win

MT. MORRIS—The Mt. Morris Mounders raced to a 22-6 first-quarter lead, here, Saturday night and went on to defeat Shabbona 77-63 in a non-conference basketball game.

Mt. Morris upped its season total to 16-6 with the victory. Bruce Hongsermeier, who tallied 34 points versus Stillman Valley Friday night, dumped in 29 markers to pace the Mounders Saturday. Hongsermeier canned 11 baskets and was perfect in seven chances at the free-throw line.

Ron Alden backed Hongsermeier with 21 points on eight buckets and a handful of charity tosses. Duane Espe led Shabbona with 11. Mt. Morris took the freshman-sophomore game 55-29. The Mounders now go to Pecatonica Friday for a Mid-Northern contest and then wind up regular season action at Dakota Saturday.

Shooting accuracy reached an all-time high in college basketball last season. All of the nation's major collegians combined for a .460 field-goal percentage (if you want to check, it was 386,450 goals in 840,194 attempts) — smashing the previous all-time high of .454 set in 1974. And the jump of six percentage points was the biggest since it went up eight points to .425 in 1964. Not surprisingly, total field goals per game (62.9, both teams combined) also reached an all-time high and scoring went up almost four points per game to 153.1 (both teams combined). That's only 2.1 points per game short of the all-time high set in 1971, when the average game produced 35 free throws in 51.3 attempts, compared to 27.4 for 39.7 at the line last season in the third year of the new foul rule.

To a burglar, that living room light means Mr. Jones is home.

To Mr. Jones in Florida, that's a comforting thought.

How do you keep an empty house from looking empty? With timing devices that turn lights on and off at pre-set times while you're away. To a would-be burglar, your house seems occupied. Some devices have special light-sensitive cells that automatically turn a light on at dusk and off at dawn. Some allow the on-off cycle to occur several times a night. The craftiest burglar would never suspect. The best time to use timers is while you're on vacation or on weekends away from home. But it's a good idea to use them any time you're away. A burglar can take advantage of an evening on the town as easily as a two-week vacation.

Mt. Everest conqueror now training others

DARJEELING, West Bengal, India (AP) — Tenzing Norgay, the Sherpa who coconquered Mt. Everest with Sir Edmund Hillary in 1953, has been training other mountaineers and trekking the Himalayas ever since.

"I first tried to climb Everest in 1936. After I finally did it I gave it up," says the 63-year-old Tenzing, as he prefers to be called. "But for me the training of climbers, a trek sometimes as a vacation, that is my life."

The first impression on meeting Tenzing is his ready and flashing white smile. This writer joined a 19-member group in December for a high-country trek with Tenzing as "sirdar," the professional in charge of Sherpa and Nepalese porters. After four weeks with Tenzing the other strong impressions were his personal charm, sense of humor, and physical condition.

Tenzing was one of 13 children born to a peasant couple in a village in Nepal. He left home as a boy, became famous, and lives now in this 8,500-foot hillside city, a traditional staging area for Everest expeditions, as a citizen of India.

"I have also been to many countries, many mountains," said Tenzing. "Some day I want to see the Rockies of Colorado and climb in them."

A peak in the Rockies might seem too easy for the conquerer of the world's highest mountain. Everest is 29,028 feet; the highest peak in the Rockies is Mt. Elbert at 14,431 feet.

"Indian people cannot leave the country with their own money," Tenzing added. "I will need a sponsor to visit the Rockies." He has climbed in the Alps and the Sierra of California.

"I tried to climb Everest six times before Hillary and I did it," he said one day on the trek. "Once, when I was very young, a crazy man from South Africa and I tried it by ourselves. We did pretty good but we had to give up. We went up the Tibet side with no permission. A lot of trouble. Crazy. I never saw him again."

More than 40 climbers — including members of an unsubstantiated climb by Communist Chinese — have reached the top of Everest, but Tenzing and Hillary were first nearly 23 years ago.

Sherpas are a small tribe with no written language and a forgotten history, but they are believed to be descended from Tibetans, whose country was seized by Communist China in 1957.

Few Sherpas rise above porter status to become full-fledged climbers. Tenzing is the best known "Tiger Sherpa," one who has distinguished himself on a major climb, usually above the 25,000-foot level.

Tenzing is tall for a Sherpa, 5 foot 8, although photos showing him next to Hillary after their victory 23 years ago make him appear shorter next to the lanky New Zealander. He is a Buddhist who neither smokes nor drinks.

He lives in a three-story hillside villa with his wife, four of his six children, and 25 dogs. For most of the year, he works in an office or a training camp near Everest in Nepal as director of field training for the Indian government's Himalayan Mountaineering Institute.

Upholds red dye ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chief Justice Warren Burger says he won't postpone a ban on the use of Red Dye No. 2, turning down a request by manufacturers of the coloring agent.

Burger's refusal Friday was in response to a request by the manufacturers who sought to continue marketing Red No. 2 while a Food and Drug Administration order against it is being contested in a lower court.

The suit to set aside the ban is set for arguments in the U.S. Court of Appeals on April 15.

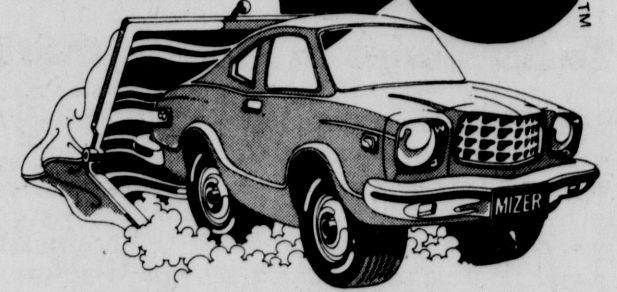

The FDA moved to ban the food, drug and cosmetic coloring agent on the basis of data suggesting it might be a weak cancer-causing agent.

The Certified Color Manufacturers Association argued that the dye has not been shown to be harmful to humans and said the FDA order would result in losses of $3.5 million to the industry.

Red No. 2 has been used in the United States since 1907 to color products ranging from lipstick to candy.

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Monday, Feb. 16, the 47th day of 1976. There are 319 days left in the year. George Washington's birthday is observed today.

Today's highlight in history:
On this date in 1959, Fidel Castro was sworn in as the Premier of Cuba.

On this date:
In 1804, a force of American servicemen under Lieut. Stephen Decatur slipped into the North African port of Tripoli and burned a U.S. Navy frigate which had been captured by pirates.

In 1846, the first Texas state legislature met in Austin.

In 1871, the Franco-Prussian War ended in a defeat for France.

In 1862, during the Civil War, some 15,000 Confederate troops surrendered at Fort Donelson in Tennessee.

In 1918, the English port of Dover was bombarded by a German submarine during World War I.

In 1967, 13 American helicopters were shot down in fighting over South Vietnam.

Ten years ago: The World Council of Churches urged the U.S. to halt bombing in North Vietnam and the North Vietnamese to stop infiltrating South Vietnam.

Five years ago: U.S. Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird predicted difficult days ahead in the South Vietnamese drive to cut Communist supply lines in Laos.

One year ago: U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko opened diplomatic talks in Geneva.

Today's birthday: British director John Schlesinger is 50 years old.

Thought for today: Sin and dandelions are very much alike. To get rid of them is a lifetime fight, and you never quite win it — William Allen White, American writer, 1868-1944.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, an American military report to the Continental Congress from Georgia listed the problem of defending a long sea coast full of harbors and inlets, and the difficulty of guarding the southern borders from incursions from Florida.

The Doctor Says:

Milk fat not directly linked to heart disease

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB—I am enclosing an article from the National Enquirer pointing out the danger of drinking homogenized milk. According to the article, "the fat in milk contains a substance called xanthine oxidase, an enzyme. This enzyme will attack the heart and its arteries if it enters the bloodstream and it is able to get into the blood from homogenized milk." Since then I've been worried about drinking homogenized milk. Is it really dangerous? Is it really a good idea to boil the milk before drinking it to kill the xanthine oxidase? I would be very much interested in your opinion.

DEAR READER—This idea has been publicized through the efforts of Dr. Kurt A. Oster and is about as you relate it. Dr. Oster thinks that heart disease first became a problem about the time that homogenized milk came on the market. He claims that homogenizing the milk breaks down the fat molecules into small particles (which is true) and makes it easier then for the enzyme, which is attached to fat globules, to be absorbed through the intestinal wall.

Dr. Edwin L. Bierman of the University of Washington in Seattle and Dr. Robert E. Shank of Washington University in St. Louis, recently reviewed this theory in an editorial for the Journal of the American Medical Assn. and they point out several important facts that the Oster theory ignores.

The truth is that the increase in heart and vascular disease had already begun well before homogenized milk was widely used. Moreover, the incidence has declined recently although the use of homogenized milk has not.

Still more important, enzymes are proteins and the acid and pepsin material in the stomach breaks down proteins as the first stage of digestion.

Presumably the Oster enzyme is not immune to normal digestion and would no longer be an enzyme after passing through the stomach.
There is no satisfactory proof the enzyme would be absorbed through the intestine into the blood stream if it escaped the digestive process.
